Fire, which is thought to have start-in the furnace-room, last night de-royed the brick high school building and a frame graded school house at ighland Springs, entailing a loss of 525,000, covered by $20,000 insurance liquests for aid were made to the Richmond Fire Department, and several fremen from Engine Company No. 11 and Truck Company No. 1 were sent

The blaze spread rapidly after it was discovered, between 9 and 10 o clock, and the small chemical engine, which is maintained at Highland Springs, was of little use in checking it. The illumination could be seen for miles, and it was thought by some that there was a serious configuration in the eastern part of the city. Floors Were Olled.

It is believed that the quick spread of the flames was due to the fact that the floors of the high school had been led on Friday night for an enter-cause of the fire. Intense excitement prevailed when the blaze was discovered, but despite the blaze was discovered, but despite efforts on the part of volunteers, no furniture, with the exception of a plane, was saved. The flames quickly sprend to the frame schoolhouse, not far away, and in a few minutes it was in ruins. The high school, a two-story light. structure, was erected in 1908.

Fuller on the Warpath.

Councilman E. R. Fuller, of Madi-on Ward, has been sharpening his poses to base his opposition. In a statement to The Times-Dispatch last week, he indicated his unalterable opposition to the incorporation of the amendment in the city charter.

"As a member of the Finance Committee," said Mr. Fuller, "I am all the more opposed to it. This committee at present exercises distinct powers in regulating appropriations for default. regulating appropriations for definite purposes. In my opinion, the amendment proposed would rob it of this function, and transfer it to the Administrative Board to is a that the power to designate the general uses to which an appropriation shall be put should lie always with

Ablerman Puller last night states his position with regard to this amend ment, as well as to another which proposes to give the board full power to increase the salaries of officers at employes in departments under its di rection, in this manner:

"There has been much loose criti-cism of the Administrative Board, and the charge has been made that as a governmental experiment it has proved a failure. I am not now prepared say that it has been a failure or success. The board is less than a ye

"I take this position—we must trust some division of the city government with the disposal of public funds and with the regulation of salaries, the board can't be trusted it is a fail-ure. I can't see the consistency in creating and maintaining an Administrative Board at an annual cost of $30,000 a year and more, and at the same time withholding from it the most important of the duties to exercise which it was designed.

Does Not Fear Board.

"I have no more fear that the hoard will bankrupt the city, than I have that the Council will bankrupt the city. Certainly it is more to the interest of the board to administrate economically and without favor than the to the Council's interest, because t is to the Council's interest, because the very existence of the board de-pends upon giving efficient service, while the Council's existence is in no wise affected by it.

"For these reasons I want to give the board broader powers. I want to give it a free hand to demonstrate its right to live. I am not wedded to it as a permanent part of our govern-mental machine. It deserves a fair trial and a fair chance to do its work unhampered. If it then fails to prove its efficiency I shall be the first to de-mand that it be abolished."
